Sydney-based Jedi Plumbing, has a reputation for fast-response to emergency plumbing situations. Now, acknowledging the increase in client contact through online portals, the company has made access to its services easier with the launch of a new website, JediPlumbing.com.au

In announcing the move, Jedi Plumbing's Cameron Baker, said that in emergencies fewer clients now look to telephone directories for help.

"When emergency plumbing events occur, our clients have told us that they either go to their computer or reach for their smart phone to find the service that they need - there is no time to ring random listings in the telephone directory, hoping someone will answer, and then quizzing them about their services" said Mr Baker.

"By delivering up-to-date and comprehensive information about our plumbing services through our website, we are now able to answer our clients' questions before they are even ask" said Mr Baker. "This, in turn, speeds up the service delivery process. We can get on site and begin fixing the problem without delay."

The Jedi Plumbing website lists the range of services provided, and gives a mobile phone number that is answered 24 hours a day, 7 days a week.

"We know only too well that plumbing emergencies don't occur on a 9-5 schedule. In fact, it is outside of those hours, when residents are at home, that they happen, or are noticed" explained Mr Baker. "In offering emergency plumbing services, we put ourselves out there to be contactable around-the-clock, and know that clients won't be calling at 2 a.m. if it is not a true emergency."

Jedi Plumbing's new website is complemented by the company's facebook page.
